

About the FTSE Cürex FX Index Series.

Building blocks.

The FTSE Cürex FX Index Series is an innovative series of independent benchmark indices for currency baskets and constituent pairs executable in real-time 24/5. The index series links institutional foreign exchange with global capital markets, providing foundational valuation metrics and analytical tools for institutions seeking to approach, access and grow currency as an asset class.

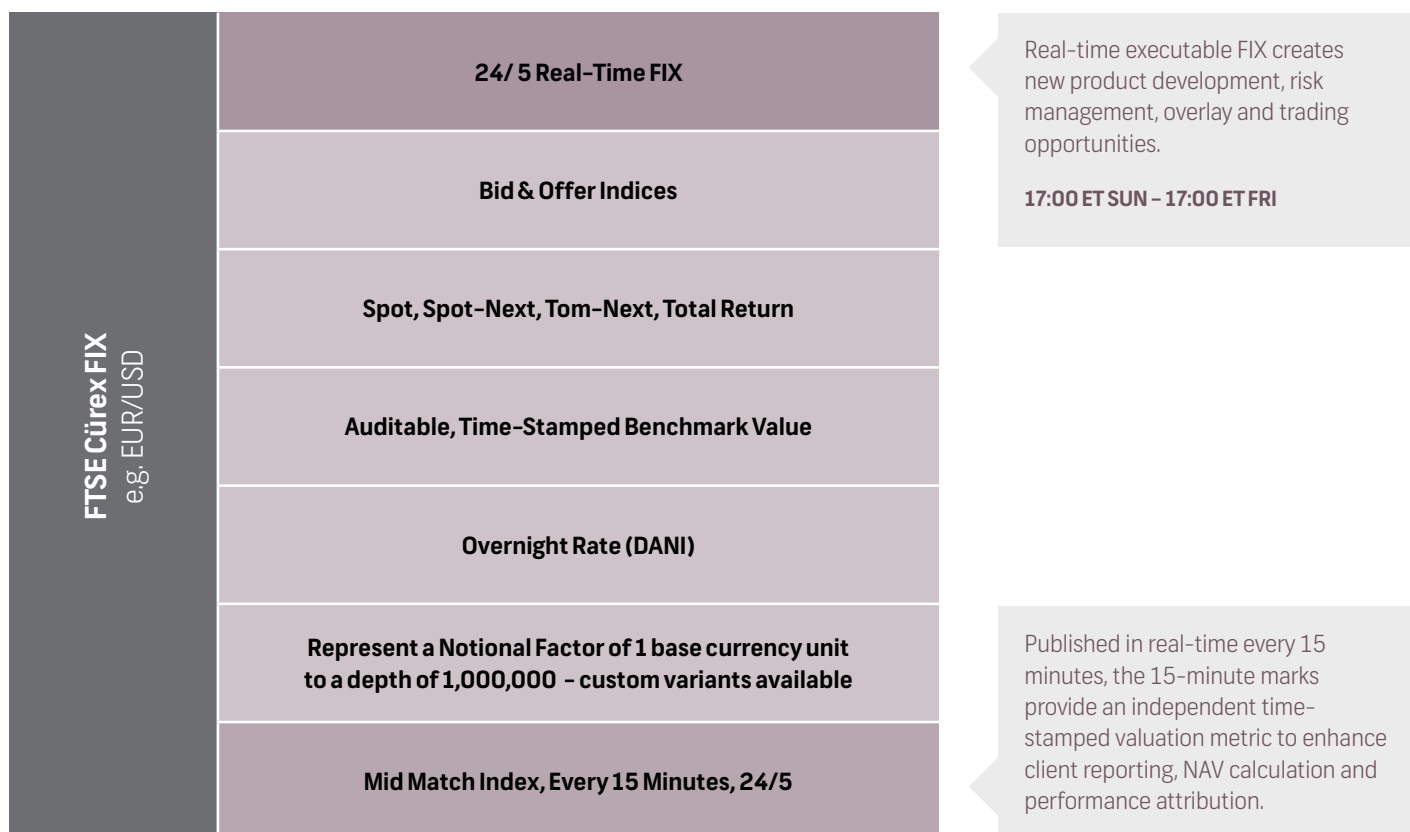

The FTSE Cürex FIX provides independent benchmarks for currency pairs, executable in real-time 24/5. Index values are derived from bid/offer spreads sourced from major liquidity providers in the institutional foreign exchange market. The indices incorporate numerous innovative features which set them apart from other currency benchmarks, creating new opportunities for product issuers and providing enhanced risk management and investment tools for investors.

FTSE Cürex FIX.

FTSE Cürex FIX is rules-based and calculated using executable bid/offer spreads sourced from leading global providers of institutional FX liquidity, providing accurate, time-stamped benchmarks for the valuation of currency pairs.

Created and managed in accordance with FTSE's renowned standards of index design, the FTSE Cürex FIX provides independent benchmarks for the valuation of currency pairs. These pairs acts as building blocks for the creation and valuation of the next generation of currency investment, risk management and overlay products; and provide an independent valuation metric to enhance client reporting, performance attribution and NAV calculations.
